Summary:

DBSync for MySQL & DB2 is a database synchronizer which performs MySQL to DB2 and DB2 to MySQL database conversion and synchronization simply by configuring several options in wizard-like application. This tool gives you chance not only convert your data with synchronization, but there is also a possibility to choose particular number of tables for synching. You can organize application work using command line parameters and choose whether to copy the identical records from source database to the destination database or not. The program provides high speed synchronization and gives the opportunity to select Insert, Update and Drop types of synching. All options selected initiate full database synchronization. You can check each program step with savable log files and run again synchronization with stored session files that keep all your made inputs and settings. DBConvert Scheduler gives you an opportunity to run DBSync for MySQL & DB2 program sessions and any other applications on a user defined schedule that means that you can run programs without user input after having scheduled it once. Features:

Unicode Support, Primary keys and Indexes conversion, Interactive multilingual (English, German, French, Russian) GUI mode/advanced command line mode, data filtering, renaming of tables, fields and indexes before conversion. For data protection during synchronization process you can open SSH tunnel for secure communication between remote computers using data encryption. One of the key things of database managing is the ability to filter data during conversion and synchronization. Integrated data filters allow users to retrieve only specific data for synchronized tables according to defined filtering criterias (conditions). Filters give you more control on data migration process. To guide you through all synchronization stages and settings adjustment for Filters, SSH and customization options the detailed help file is enclosed as well.
